Lesson Plan for Quarter 2 Week 1 Day 1

PREPARE

1. Background knowledge necessary for today’s reading
   Have students read and learn about the Great Chicago Fire of 1871
   http://www.encyclopedia.com/doc/1G2-3406400154.html

2. Word Wall
   Introduce 5 important, useful words from today’s reading

   | pugnacious | malaria | plight | prosperous | muckrakers |

   • show, say, explain, expand, explode or buzz about the word briefly
   • show, say and define the word quickly and add to the word wall

READ

3. Review the Timeline
   Start at the beginning and review the chapter so far
   • time and place where the events are taking place
   • point to each timeline item as you quickly review it

<table>

RESPOND

5. Add to the Timeline

Discuss the reading and add 3-5 events to the timeline
• discuss the story to fix the facts: who, what, when, where, why
• decide on the 3-5 most important events and add these to the timeline

Students might mention (pieces for timeline)
Maria Harris Jones a woman on her own making a life for herself after she loses her family to Malaria
Mother Jones becomes an advocate for children
Child labors laws begin
The Great Chicago Fire

Add new information to ongoing whole class projects posted on the wall.
• information can be added to an Open Mind Portrait
• an answer can be added to a question from the KWL Chart
• a new location or change can be added to the map

EXPLORE

6. Explore today’s reading with visual and oral language activities
Using the Venn diagram have students compare labor laws of the 1800’s to now. What is the same what is different?
Directions: One circle on the outside should contain the laws of the 1800’s for children. The other outside circle should contain the laws of today. Have students place in the connect part of the circle the things that are similar. Ask them if they would rather live with the laws then or now? Why?

http://www.dol.gov/dol/topic/youthlabor/ParentsofYoung.htm
Directions:

Fill out the Venn Diagram Box

1. Decide on 2 characters, or settings, or events, or other variables you wish to analyze in the story, chapter or segment you have read. Label each of the 2 circles.
2. Where the 2 circles overlap, write the way these two are alike.
3. Where the circles are distinct, write down how each is different.
7. Explore today’s reading

Key Questions

Why is it important that a woman was able to become successful in business and then become the leader in child labor laws?
What was significant about the Chicago fire?
Why are child labor laws important?
Who was involved with the Chicago fire?
Why are Muckrakers important to our societies well being?
What was Malaria and how many people did it kill?
What happened to the people of Chicago after the fire?

Key Paragraph

“Some people don’t want to learn about unpleasant things. The police called Mother Jones a public nuisance. They arrested her. When the judge asked who gave her a permit to speak on the streets, she said, “Patrick Henry, Thomas Jefferson and John Adams!” Mother Jones was sent to more then once.

EXTEND

8. Prompt every student to write a short product tied to today’s reading

What is Mother Jones talking about giving her the right to speak out on the streets?

9. Close with a short summary

Discuss the reading and add 3-5 events to the timeline
- discuss the story to fix the facts: who, what, when, where, why
- decide on the 3-5 most important events and add these to the timeline

Students might mention (pieces for timeline)
1905 starting of the Wobblies for fair labor laws
1912 workers walk out on strike
February of 1912 Police under orders of City Marshal attacked the both women and children
One child was killed and was not involved with strikers
Communication at this time has picked up and media is reporting these incidents to all of its readers

Add new information to ongoing whole class projects posted on the wall.

- information can be added to an Open Mind Portrait
- an answer can be added to a question from the KWL Chart
- a new location or change can be added to the map

EXPLORE

6. Explore today’s reading with visual and oral language activities

Have students create an open mind portrait of Gurley Flynn
Why was she so important to us today?
Directions:

Open Mind Portrait: Create an Open Mind Portrait of a Character

materials:
- large piece of stiff paper for each character, like 11x17 oak tag
- paper for bubbles with scissors and glue sticks
- markers, crayons, pens, pencils, or paint
- construction or tissue paper, scissors and glue sticks if desired
Step One: create a large head shot of the character

1. Imagine what you think the character looks like from the descriptions in the text as well as your imagination. You can make a list of these details to help you draw the character, if you wish.
2. Decide how much of the character you wish to show: just the head and face? from the shoulders up? from the waist up? the whole person? You might want to include at least the shoulders to include some clothing details. You might want to show the size differences between characters.
3. Draw the characters head shot including the face on the large piece of paper. You could also cut the paper to form the head.
4. Illustrate your portrait with colors, construction paper or whatever will make the character colorful.

Step Two: place cartoon bubbles of character thoughts around the portrait

1. Cut cartoon bubbles out.
2. Write things the character thinks, or says to himself, on each bubble.
3. Put the bubbles up around the portrait.

Step Three: add bubbles as you learn new things about the character

1. Read the story further and identify new things you have learned about the character, or ways the character has changed.
2. Follow step 2 to create and place additional bubbles.

Variations of this Open Mind Portrait

1. You can use this process for any character in the story
2. You can use bubbles for what the character says, says to himself or herself, or does. You could make each of these different colors if you wish.
3. You could add bubbles for what the character learns, or ways the character changes, and use different colors for each.
4. You could use different colors for the beginning, middle and end of the story. Remember in the beginning you are introduced to the setting, the characters and the problems they have. In the middle you learn about the roadblocks to the characters solving their problems, and conflicts occur. In the end of the story those conflicts reach a peak and then resolve with a resolution of the character’s problems.
5. You could use different colors for the phases you see in a story or the development of a particular character.
6. Instead of using bubbles you could write the bubble contents on the back of the portrait. You could use any of the variations above with color or print, or create columns or boxes for different categories or phases.
7. You could literally open the head like a hinge and list the contents [as though they were escaping from the space] using any of these variations.
8. You could make an Open Mind Portrait of yourself using any of the above variations.

Variations for Writing

1. You could use the OMP to help write a character sketch, or to help decide what a character might do in a story.

7. Explore today’s reading

Key Questions

How did the Wobblies change the labor laws today?
Who are the people involved with the change?
Was this change for the betterment of our society?
What did it take for this change to completely change?
What were the sacrifices made during this time of change?
Were the Wobblies successful even though they are no longer?

Key Paragraph

“They cannot weave cloth with Bayonets,” said Joe Ettor, “By all means make the strike as peaceful as possible.”

EXTEND

8. Prompt every student to write a short product tied to today’s reading

What is the message from Joe Ettor? What event is this connected?

6. Explore today’s reading with visual and oral language activities

Have students break up in groups no bigger then 3 have then choose from a list of current topics. Give them two sources that tell both sides of the story. Have them figure out which one is more credible and why it is more factual. Is all free press good? When is it not good? Have each group give examples when press is damaging to our society. Have students come up with examples of when free press is necessary to give out important news to our society. Have each group present their findings using a poster or some type of visual representation i.e. PowerPoint, video, pictures....
7. Explore today’s reading

Key Questions

How has free press helped our society?
How does free press regulate our representatives in the government?
What is investigative journalism?
How is media different from back then to today?
How do we know what is the truth in media?
What is a primary source?
Who is the most reliable reporters of news?
How does the media cut down on corruption in our government?

Key Paragraph

“Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech or of the press; or the right of the people to peaceably to assemble, and to petition the government for redress of grievances.”

Have student compare two Muckrakers of this time.  Upton Sinclair and IDA M. TARBEll.  Have student Cube both authors.  Then have them compare and contrast the two.  How are they similar?  How are they different?  What impact did they have on society?  Did everyone agree with what they wrote?  Why or why not?  Are they an example of beneficial free press?

http://www.history.rochester.edu/fuels/tarbell/PREFACE.HTM

Directions:

Fill out the six squares by writing about the topic in each square.

1. Six of the squares will have a question or topic listed inside the square.  Six of the squares are information squares and the others are flaps that will help the cube hold together when you assemble the cube.  Fill out only the information squares: the ones that have something already printed in them.

2. In regard to your overall subject, answer the question in each box or write about the topic in each square.  For example, if you are writing about an event, like a news story, you would use the 4c12 Cubing Who, What, When, Where, Why form.  In the Who square write about who the story is about; in the What square write about what happened; in the When box write about when it happened; in the Where box, write about where it happened; in the Why box, write about why you think it happened.
3. In each square write the basic, important information you know about this question or topic. Depending on the size of the box, this might be anywhere from 1 to 5 sentences.

materials:
• stiff paper 11x17 or bigger to make a map
• or a printed map of the area
• push pins or something else to mark the map
• pencils, pens, crayons, markers
• construction paper, scissors, glue sticks if desired
Step One: Find or make a map of the setting in the story.

1. Make sure key places are located on the map. Remember this map needs to be big enough to mark many things on.

Step Two: After today's reading, place a mark where the story left off.

1. Decide where the story leaves off [or ends] today – this is usually the location of the main character.
2. Put a pin or other marker at this spot.

Step Three: Add or mark important places in the story on the map.

1. Decide if any of the places in today’s reading are important for this story.
2. Either add these places to the map or mark them.

Variations for the Map

1. If you are reading a book from a certain geographical location, you will want to have a map available.
2. Use a big map and a little map for specific places that are important in the story, like a particular place or property or smaller area.
3. Use a different kind of map like a smaller map or a topographic map.
4. Make up the map as you learn details in the story. This works well when the characters don’t actually know where they are.

Variations for Writing

1. Write a description of the setting using the map as a guide.

7. Explore today’s reading

Key Questions

Why is preservation so important back then and now?
Why are people against preservation?
Who is the Sierra club? Do they still exist?
Was Muir right in exploring and trying to save the land?
Who else was involved with trying to preserve the land of America?
Why is it important animals don’t become extinct?
Could Humans ever become extinct? Why or why not?
What do you do to help preserve your future?

Key Paragraph

“Reformer Theodore Roosevelt had visited some of those sweatshops. IN his autobiography he wrote, “It was this case which first waked me to a dim and partial understanding of the fact that the courts were not necessarily the best judges of what should be done to better social and industrial conditions. The judges who rendered this decision were well-meaning men. They knew nothing whatever of tenement house conditions; they knew legalism, not life. Key Paragraph

“The ancient hula dance wasn’t a tourist entertainment: it was a religious ritual. Christian missionaries- like the man preaching before the queen and her subjects on Oahu in this 1847 woodcut- tried to ban the hula, along with other traditional Hawaiian arts. Dancers practiced in secret until the reign of king Kalakaua (1874-1891), who fathered the best artists at his court. Where they created a new form of hula.” Page 159

Have students do an open mind portrait of Henry Ford. Why would he want to build cars for everyday people? What was his goal with the parts on the car? Who is Eli Whitney?

Directions:

Open Mind Portrait: Create an Open Mind Portrait of a Character

materials:
- large piece of stiff paper for each character, like 11x17 oak tag
- paper for bubbles with scissors and glue sticks
- markers, crayons, pens, pencils, or paint
- construction or tissue paper, scissors and glue sticks if desired

Step One: create a large head shot of the character

5. Imagine what you think the character looks like from the descriptions in the text as well as your imagination. You can make a list of these details to help you draw the character, if you wish.

6. Decide how much of the character you wish to show: just the head and face? from the shoulders up? from the waist up? the whole person? You might want to include at least the shoulders to include some clothing details. You might want to show the size differences between characters.

7. Draw the characters head shot including the face on the large piece of paper. You could also cut the paper to form the head.

8. Illustrate your portrait with colors, construction paper or whatever will make the character colorful.

Step Two: place cartoon bubbles of character thoughts around the portrait

1. Cut cartoon bubbles out.
2. Write things the character thinks, or says to himself, on each bubble.
3. Put the bubbles up around the portrait.

Step Three: add bubbles as you learn new things about the character

3. Read the story further and identify new things you have learned about the character, or ways the character has changed.
4. Follow step 2 to create and place additional bubbles.

Variations of this Open Mind Portrait

9. You can use this process for any character in the story
10. You can use bubbles for what the character says, says to himself or herself, or does. You could make each of these different colors if you wish.
11. You could add bubbles for what the character learns, or ways the character changes, and use different colors for each.
12. You could use different colors for the beginning, middle and end of the story. Remember in the beginning you are introduced to the setting, the characters and the problems they have. In the middle you learn about the roadblocks to the characters solving their problems, and conflicts occur. In the end of the story those conflicts reach a peak and then resolve with a resolution of the character’s problems.
13. You could use different colors for the phases you see in a story or the development of a particular character.
14. Instead of using bubbles you could write the bubble contents on the back of the portrait. You could use any of the variations above with color or print, or create columns or boxes for different categories or phases.
15. You could literally open the head like a hinge and list the contents [as though they were escaping from the space] using any of these variations.
16. You could make an Open Mind Portrait of yourself using any of the above variations.
Variations for Writing

1. You could use the OMP to help write a character sketch, or to help decide what a character might do in a story.

How are cars different from then to now?
Who invented the first car?
Are those cars around today?

Key Paragraph

“Regardless of earlier uses of some of these principles (interchangeable parts, conveyor belts, etc.) …mass production and its intensification into automation stems directly from what we worked out at Ford…between 1908-1913.”

EXPLORE

6. Explore today’s reading with visual and oral language activities

Have student create a magazine article that explains the exploration of the Wright Brothers. Show how they were able to create the flying machine without any formal education.

Directions:

Magazine Layout

materials:
• stiff paper 9x12 to 11x17 or butcher paper
• pencils, pens, crayons, markers
• construction paper, scissors, glue sticks if desired

Step One: Imagine you are on the editorial team for People magazine.

1. You have been assigned to do the cover story
2. You will have the cover and 5 pages to cover the story.
3. Decide on your take on the story: what is it really about? What title will you give the overall story.
Step Two: Create the cover for the magazine.

1. Decide on the size of the pages and then lay out the cover in this size.
2. Decide what text, pictures or other images you will bring together to make sure the cover conveys your take, or central impression, or thesis about the story.
3. Create the cover.

Step Three: Decide what will be on each of the 5 pages.

1. Decide what the main idea will be for each page.
2. Remember that each page must relate directly back to the cover.
3. Use the first page to introduce the basic facts about the story [the setting and characters] and the last page to bring it to conclusion [the resolution of the plot].

Step Four: Make each of the pages and assemble the story.

1. Make each of the pages filling in the words, pictures and images.
2. Assemble the cover and pages like a magazine or in a wall display.

Variations for the Magazine

1. Choose a different magazine for a different perspective: The National Enquirer, Newsweek, or whatever you wish. You can also make up your own magazine.
2. Instead of making the magazine, you could do a design for the magazine detailing which words and pictures should appear in each spot. This should be specific enough that a designer could make the magazine pages from your specifications.
3. Bind the cover and pages together to form a mini-book.

Variations for Writing

1. Because all of the pages connect back to the cover, you could turn this magazine article into an expository essay. The cover is your thesis. Each of the pages can be written as a paragraph. The first page is your introduction; the last page is your conclusion.
2. Any, or all, of the pages can be written as paragraphs. Or the entire article can be condensed into one paragraph.

What was unique about the Brothers?
Who else did they inspire?
Why was the invention of the airplane so important?
How are airplanes different today?
What else other than travel were airplanes used for?
What do you think you could invent? Back then? And now?

Key Paragraph

“It is my belief that flight is possible and while I am taking up the investigation for pleasure rather than profit, I think there is a slight chance of achieving fame and fortune from it. It is almost the only great problem, which has not been pursued by a multitude of investigators, and therefore carried to a point where further progress is very difficult. I am certain I can reach a point much in advance of any previous workers in this field.”

EXPLORE

6. Explore today’s reading with visual and oral language activities

Create an open mind portrait of Woodrow Wilson today. What would he think about how things are run today? What would he think of our government? What would he think of our president?

Directions:

Open Mind Portrait: Create an Open Mind Portrait of a Character

materials:
• large piece of stiff paper for each character, like 11x17 oak tag
• paper for bubbles with scissors and glue sticks
• markers, crayons, pens, pencils, or paint
• construction or tissue paper, scissors and glue sticks if desired

Step One: create a large head shot of the character

9. Imagine what you think the character looks like from the descriptions in the text as well as your imagination. You can make a list of these details to help you draw the character, if you wish.
10. Decide how much of the character you wish to show: just the head and face? from the shoulders up? from the waist up? the whole person? You might want to include at least the shoulders to include some clothing details. You might want to show the size differences between characters.
11. Draw the characters head shot including the face on the large piece of paper. You could also cut the paper to form the head.
12. Illustrate your portrait with colors, construction paper or whatever will make the character colorful.

Step Two: place cartoon bubbles of character thoughts around the portrait

1. Cut cartoon bubbles out.
2. Write things the character thinks, or says to himself, on each bubble.
3. Put the bubbles up around the portrait.

Step Three: add bubbles as you learn new things about the character

5. Read the story further and identify new things you have learned about the character, or ways the character has changed.
6. Follow step 2 to create and place additional bubbles.

Variations of this Open Mind Portrait

17. You can use this process for any character in the story
18. You can use bubbles for what the character says, says to himself or herself, or does. You could make each of these different colors if you wish.
19. You could add bubbles for what the character learns, or ways the character changes, and use different colors for each.
20. You could use different colors for the beginning, middle and end of the story. Remember in the beginning you are introduced to the setting, the characters and the problems they have. In the middle you learn about the roadblocks to the characters solving their problems, and conflicts occur. In the end of the story those conflicts reach a peak and then resolve with a resolution of the character’s problems.
21. You could use different colors for the phases you see in a story or the development of a particular character.
22. Instead of using bubbles you could write the bubble contents on the back of the portrait. You could use any of the variations above with color or print, or create columns or boxes for different categories or phases.
23. You could literally open the head like a hinge and list the contents [as though they were escaping from the space] using any of these variations.
24. You could make an Open Mind Portrait of yourself using any of the above variations.
Variations for Writing

1. You could use the OMP to help write a character sketch, or to help decide what a character might do in a story.

Key Questions
How did Woodrow Wilson start out in school?
Did people assume he was dumb because of his learning disability?
Should we admire Woodrow Wilson for overcoming dyslexia during a time learning disabilities were not identified?
Who are other famous people you have heard of, that has dyslexia?
What made Woodrow Wilson different from other presidents?
Was Wilson a man who walked his talk?
How is Wilson’s presidency different from our current president?
How did Wilson feel about going to war?
When did Wilson win the Noble Peace prize?
What was Wilson’s biggest fault? (Racism and women’s rights)

Key Paragraph

“Wilson’s ideas on foreign affairs were different from those of presidents who came just before him. He was not concerned with making America powerful. He was not interested in treaties that gave unfair advantages to American business. He was not an imperialist. He thought that nations, like people, should not be selfish. He believed the United States should help other nations become democratic. Mostly, he hoped to stay out of foreign affairs.”

How was America forced into the war?
Why was WWI called the “Great War?”
At what age were American Males recruited?
How did women's jobs change?
How were blacks, which fought in this war, treated?

Key Paragraph

“Russia’s Leo Tolstoy, who wrote War and Peace, which many believe the greatest novel ever written, said that war “is not a polite recreation, but the vilest thing in life, and we out to understand that and not play at war.” Tolstoy died in 1910, a few years before the First World War broke out.”

EXPLORE

6. Explore today’s reading with visual and oral language activities

Have students create a magazine on what happened when the war ended. Use not only information from the book but the Internet as well.

Directions:

Magazine Layout

materials:
• stiff paper 9x12 to 11x17 or butcher paper
• pencils, pens, crayons, markers
• construction paper, scissors, glue sticks if desired

Step One: Imagine you are on the editorial team for People magazine.

4. You have been assigned to do the cover story
5. You will have the cover and 5 pages to cover the story.
6. Decide on your take on the story: what is it really about? What title will you give the overall story.
Step Two: Create the cover for the magazine.

1. Decide on the size of the pages and then lay out the cover in this size.
2. Decide what text, pictures or other images you will bring together to make sure the cover conveys your take, or central impression, or thesis about the story.
3. Create the cover.

Step Three: Decide what will be on each of the 5 pages.

4. Decide what the main idea will be for each page.
5. Remember that each page must relate directly back to the cover.
6. Use the first page to introduce the basic facts about the story [the setting and characters] and the last page to bring it to conclusion [the resolution of the plot].

Step Four: Make each of the pages and assemble the story.

1. Make each of the pages filling in the words, pictures and images.
2. Assemble the cover and pages like a magazine or in a wall display.

Variations for the Magazine

4. Choose a different magazine for a different perspective: The National Enquirer, Newsweek, or whatever you wish. You can also make up your own magazine.
5. Instead of making the magazine, you could do a design for the magazine detailing which words and pictures should appear in each spot. This should be specific enough that a designer could make the magazine pages from your specifications.
6. Bind the cover and pages together to form a mini-book.

Variations for Writing

1. Because all of the pages connect back to the cover, you could turn this magazine article into an expository essay. The cover is your thesis. Each of the pages can be written as a paragraph. The first page is your introduction; the last page is your conclusion.
2. Any, or all, of the pages can be written as paragraphs. Or the entire article can be condensed into one paragraph.

Have students Cube McCarthyism

Directions:

Fill out the six squares by writing about the topic in each square.

4. Six of the squares will have a question or topic listed inside the square. Six of the squares are information squares and the others are flaps that will help the cube hold together when you assemble the cube. Fill out only the information squares: the ones that have something already printed in them.

5. In regard to your overall subject, answer the question in each box or write about the topic in each square. For example, if you are writing about an event, like a news story, you would use the 4c12 Cubing Who, What, When, Where, Why form. In the Who square write about who the story is about; in the What square write about what happened; in the When box write about when it happened; in the Where box, write about where it happened; in the Why box, write about why you think it happened.

6. In each square write the basic, important information you know about this question or topic. Depending on the size of the box, this might be anywhere from 1 to 5 sentences.

6. Explore today’s reading with visual and oral language activities

Have students create an open mind portrait of William Harding after he finds out his friends have robbed the American people under his watch.

Directions:

Open Mind Portrait: Create an Open Mind Portrait of a Character

materials:
• large piece of stiff paper for each character, like 11x17 oak tag
• paper for bubbles with scissors and glue sticks
• markers, crayons, pens, pencils, or paint
• construction or tissue paper, scissors and glue sticks if desired

Step One: create a large head shot of the character

13. Imagine what you think the character looks like from the descriptions in the text as well as your imagination. You can make a list of these details to help you draw the character, if you wish.
14. Decide how much of the character you wish to show: just the head and face? from the shoulders up? from the waist up? the whole person? You might want to include at least the shoulders to include some clothing details. You might want to show the size differences between characters.

15. Draw the characters head shot including the face on the large piece of paper. You could also cut the paper to form the head.
16. Illustrate your portrait with colors, construction paper or whatever will make the character colorful.

Step Two: place cartoon bubbles of character thoughts around the portrait

1. Cut cartoon bubbles out.
2. Write things the character thinks, or says to himself, on each bubble.
3. Put the bubbles up around the portrait.

Step Three: add bubbles as you learn new things about the character

7. Read the story further and identify new things you have learned about the character, or ways the character has changed.
8. Follow step 2 to create and place additional bubbles.

Key Questions

What did Harding do while he was president?
What mistakes did he make while being the leader of our country?
Have we seen these mistakes repeated since Harding?
Why was it big that Harding appointed black men to public office?
What was the “chicken-bone special?”
Why were blacks still sitting in the back of the train and not able to eat in the dining cart?

Key Paragraph

“Warren Harding as I said, was a pleasant man, always gracious and considerate. Maybe it was because he was so good-hearted that he wanted to help his old friends. Maybe that’s why he put some of those friends in important jobs. Most weren’t qualified for those jobs. Some were crooks who stole a whole lot of money from the nation.”

6. Explore today’s reading with visual and oral language activities

Have students create a sports magazine with all the famous sports people of the 20’s only. They can pick one or pick several however they want to lay out the magazine. Have then note that there is a chapter on white people playing sports and another chapter of Blacks and other people of color. Why weren’t they playing together?

Directions:
Magazine Layout
materials:
• stiff paper 9x12 to 11x17 or butcher paper
• pencils, pens, crayons, markers
• construction paper, scissors, glue sticks if desired

Step One: Imagine you are on the editorial team for People magazine.

7. You have been assigned to do the cover story
8. You will have the cover and 5 pages to cover the story.
9. Decide on your take on the story: what is it really about? What title will you give the overall story.

Step Two: Create the cover for the magazine.

1. Decide on the size of the pages and then lay out the cover in this size.
2. Decide what text, pictures or other images you will bring together to make sure the cover conveys your take, or central impression, or thesis about the story.
3. Create the cover.

Step Three: Decide what will be on each of the 5 pages.

7. Decide what the main idea will be for each page.
8. Remember that each page must relate directly back to the cover.
9. Use the first page to introduce the basic facts about the story [the setting and characters] and the last page to bring it to conclusion [the resolution of the plot].

Step Four: Make each of the pages and assemble the story.

1. Make each of the pages filling in the words, pictures and images.
2. Assemble the cover and pages like a magazine or in a wall display.

Variations for the Magazine

7. Choose a different magazine for a different perspective: The National Enquirer, Newsweek, or whatever you wish. You can also make up your own magazine.
8. Instead of making the magazine, you could do a design for the magazine detailing which words and pictures should appear in each spot. This should be specific enough that a designer could make the magazine pages from your specifications.
9. Bind the cover and pages together to form a mini-book.

Variations for Writing

1. Because all of the pages connect back to the cover, you could turn this magazine article into an expository essay. The cover is your thesis. Each of the pages can be written as a paragraph. The first page is your introduction; the last page is your conclusion.
2. Any, or all, of the pages can be written as paragraphs. Or the entire article can be condensed into one paragraph.
7. Explore today’s reading

Why have sports been so important to American society?
Why were the white players only playing on white teams?
Why were talented women like Mildred not playing on professional teams?

How are sports related to America’s history?
What else was going on while many Americans were watching sports?

6. Explore today’s reading with visual and oral language activities

Have students fill out a K-W-L Chart on this chapter. Then have students research some of their questions to complete what they have learned.

Directions:

Materials:
• KWL Chart

Step One: Read the chapter or segment you wish to analyze

Step Two: Fill out the K [know] column: what do you know?

1. What key things do you know from the story or explanation you have read so far? This might be who, what, where, when, why, or how information.
2. Write this information concisely in the K [What do you know?] column.

Step Three: Fill out the W [want] column: what do you want to know?

1. Given what you know, what would you like to know about this story or topic, about what has happened or will happen in the future?
2. Write this information concisely in the W [What do you want to know?] column.

Step Four: Fill out the L [learned] column: what have you learned?

1. As you read more of the story, or learn more about the topic, ask yourself what you have learned. Do you have answers to any of the questions in your W column: what you wanted to know?
2. Write this information concisely in the L [What have you learned?] column. You may want to do this at various times as you learn. You may want to check off the questions in the W column when you answer them in the L column.

Step Five: Review the chart when it is complete

Variations of the KWL Chart

1. You can do this chart for any topic you are trying to learn about.
2. This can be done on worksheets, or written on a big piece of paper, like chart paper or butcher paper. This can also be written on a white board or black board; the shape of the chart is easy to copy.
3. When you are analyzing a story, you can copy a KWL chart on a piece of paper and quickly take the story apart. This can be a helpful strategy on a test. This can use the same strategy for a nonfiction topic, a problem or a case study.
4. You can do this individually, in pairs, in a small group, or as part of a large group.

Variations for Writing

1. Write a paragraph from any of the 3 columns, K, W or L, of the chart.

Have students create a map of New Orleans, show where the famous Jazz singers and players came from. Where a speakeasy could be found. Place on map the areas where the different cultures of people stayed. What made this area more unique then other places in the south?
Directions:

Materials:
- stiff paper 11x17 or bigger to make a map
- or a printed map of the area
- push pins or something else to mark the map
- pencils, pens, crayons, markers
- construction paper, scissors, glue sticks if desired

Step One: Find or make a map of the setting in the story.

2. Make sure key places are located on the map. Remember this map needs to be big enough to mark many things on.

Step Two: After today’s reading, place a mark where the story left off.

3. Decide where the story leaves off [or ends] today – this is usually the location of the main character.
4. Put a pin or other marker at this spot.

Step Three: Add or mark important places in the story on the map.

3. Decide if any of the places in today’s reading are important for this story.
4. Either add these places to the map or mark them.

Variations for the Map

5. If you are reading a book from a certain geographical location, you will want to have a map available.
6. Use a big map and a little map for specific places that are important in the story, like a particular place or property or smaller area.
7. Use a different kind of map like a smaller map or a topographic map.
8. Make up the map as you learn details in the story. This works well when the characters don’t actually know where they are.

Variations for Writing

1. Write a description of the setting using the map as a guide.

Why are the indigenous people left out of our history?

Key Paragraph

“We encountered Jim Crow laws for the first time on a summer Sunday afternoon. We were about five and seven years old at the time. Mama and Papa used to take us to Pullen Park in Raleigh (NC) for picnics, and that particular day, the trolley driver told us to go to the back. We children objected loudly, because we always liked to sit in front where the breeze would blow your hair. But Mama and Papa just gently told us to hush and took us to the back without making a fuss. When we got to Pullen Park, we found changes there too. The spring where you got water now had a big wooden sign across the middle. On one side the word “white” was painted, and on the other, the word “colored.” Why, what in the world was all this about? We may have been little children, but, honey, we got the message loud and clear. But when nobody was looking, Bessie took the dipper from the white side and drink from it.”

EXPLORE

6. Explore today’s reading with visual and oral language activities

Have students create an open mind portrait of Robert Goddard. How did he come up with the rocket and making it fly? Why would he even think of doing this?

Directions:

Open Mind Portrait: Create an Open Mind Portrait of a Character

materials:
• large piece of stiff paper for each character, like 11x17 oak tag
• paper for bubbles with scissors and glue sticks
• markers, crayons, pens, pencils, or paint
• construction or tissue paper, scissors and glue sticks if desired

Step One: create a large head shot of the character

17. Imagine what you think the character looks like from the descriptions in the text as well as your imagination. You can make a list of these details to help you draw the character, if you wish.
18. Decide how much of the character you wish to show: just the head and face? from the shoulders up? from the waist up? the whole person? You might want to include at least the shoulders to include some clothing details. You might want to show the size differences between characters.
19. Draw the characters head shot including the face on the large piece of paper. You could also cut the paper to form the head.
20. Illustrate your portrait with colors, construction paper or whatever will make the character colorful.

Step Two: place cartoon bubbles of character thoughts around the portrait

1. Cut cartoon bubbles out.
2. Write things the character thinks, or says to himself, on each bubble.
3. Put the bubbles up around the portrait.

Step Three: add bubbles as you learn new things about the character

9. Read the story further and identify new things you have learned about the character, or ways the character has changed.
10. Follow step 2 to create and place additional bubbles.

Variations of this Open Mind Portrait

25. You can use this process for any character in the story
26. You can use bubbles for what the character says, says to himself or herself, or does. You could make each of these different colors if you wish.
27. You could add bubbles for what the character learns, or ways the character changes, and use different colors for each.
28. You could use different colors for the beginning, middle and end of the story. Remember in the beginning you are introduced to the setting, the characters and the problems they have. In the middle you learn about the roadblocks to the characters solving their problems, and conflicts occur. In the end of the story those conflicts reach a peak and then resolve with a resolution of the character’s problems.
29. You could use different colors for the phases you see in a story or the development of a particular character.
30. Instead of using bubbles you could write the bubble contents on the back of the portrait. You could use any of the variations above with color or print, or create columns or boxes for different categories or phases.
31. You could literally open the head like a hinge and list the contents [as though they were escaping from the space] using any of these variations.
32. You could make an Open Mind Portrait of yourself using any of the above variations.

Key Questions

Why was it important for Goddard to create a rocket?
Why did Guggenheim agree to financially support the project?
Who is Lindbergh?
What kinds of scientists were needed to help the rocket stay off the ground?
What other countries were working on rocket science?
What does Sir Isaac Newton have to do with the rocket science?
What do these rockets have to do with war?

Key Paragraph

“He had dreamed of space and interplanetary travel from the time he was a boy. It all began with two books. One was “The War of the Worlds,” which was written by an Englishman, H.G. Wells. The other was from “The Earth to the Moon,” written by a Frenchman, Jules Verne.”

EXPLORE

6. Explore today’s reading with visual and oral language activities

Have student create a magazine with the different types of space travel: rockets, plans, jet chairs, and whatever else they can find from the 20’s-30.

Directions:

Magazine Layout

materials:
• stiff paper 9x12 to 11x17 or butcher paper
• pencils, pens, crayons, markers
• construction paper, scissors, glue sticks if desired
Step One: Imagine you are on the editorial team for People magazine.

10. You have been assigned to do the cover story
11. You will have the cover and 5 pages to cover the story.
12. Decide on your take on the story: what is it really about? What title will you give the overall story.

Step Two: Create the cover for the magazine.

1. Decide on the size of the pages and then lay out the cover in this size.
2. Decide what text, pictures or other images you will bring together to make sure the cover conveys your take, or central impression, or thesis about the story.
3. Create the cover.

Step Three: Decide what will be on each of the 5 pages.

10. Decide what the main idea will be for each page.
11. Remember that each page must relate directly back to the cover.
12. Use the first page to introduce the basic facts about the story [the setting and characters] and the last page to bring it to conclusion [the resolution of the plot].

Step Four: Make each of the pages and assemble the story.

1. Make each of the pages filling in the words, pictures and images.
2. Assemble the cover and pages like a magazine or in a wall display.

Variations for the Magazine

10. Choose a different magazine for a different perspective: The National Enquirer, Newsweek, or whatever you wish. You can also make up your own magazine.
11. Instead of making the magazine, you could do a design for the magazine detailing which words and pictures should appear in each spot. This should be specific enough that a designer could make the magazine pages from your specifications.
12. Bind the cover and pages together to form a mini-book.
Variations for Writing

1. Because all of the pages connect back to the cover, you could turn this magazine article into an expository essay. The cover is your thesis. Each of the pages can be written as a paragraph. The first page is your introduction; the last page is your conclusion.
2. Any, or all, of the pages can be written as paragraphs. Or the entire article can be condensed into one paragraph.

7. Explore today’s reading

Key Questions

Why was flying so important to explore?
Where would we be without planes?
How did someone come up with idea to fly?
Why was Lindbergh so successful where others failed?
How long was Lindbergh’s flight to Paris? How long would it take today?
What is the different between air travel back then and now?
Do you think Lindbergh was brave or a hero? Why or why not?
What inventions have you thought about or created?

Key Paragraph

“You see he was decent. He didn’t drink and he didn’t smoke. He was modest. He had good manners. He was offered a great deal of money to pretend to smoke for an advertisement. He wouldn’t do it. He wouldn’t do anything he didn’t believe in.”

EXPLORE

6. Explore today’s reading with visual and oral language activities

Using the analytic cube have students look at the causes of the depression and have them analysis how it could have been prevented.
Directions:

Analytic Cubing

materials:
- desired cubing formats 1c1-1c12 copied on 8.5 x 11 or 11 x 17 paper
- cubing format 1c2 for cutting and folding directions
- pencils, pens, crayons, markers
- scissors, glue sticks or paste

Step One: Decide what you want to study and select a cubing form.

1. Decide what you want to study: a concept or idea, an event, something you’ve read, a thesis you want to make the case for, a topic or idea, a place, some event or period in history, a person, an action, or how something works or why it might not work.
2. Choose the cubing form that matches what you have selected to study: a concept or idea [1c12 or 3c12], an event [4c12], something you’ve read [5c12], a thesis you want to make the case for [6c12], a topic or idea [7c12], a place [8c12], some event or period in history [9c12], a person [10c12], an action [11c12], or how something works or why it might not work [12c12]. The entire list of cubing forms is:
   - 1c12 Cubing 5 Questions About Anything
   - 2c12 Cubing Directions: Assembling the Cube
   - 3c12 Cubing 6 Questions About Anything
   - 4c12 Cubing Who, What, When, Where, Why
   - 5c12 Cubing the Structure of a Text
   - 6c12 Cubing a Persuasive Essay
   - 7c12 Cubing a Topic or Idea
   - 8c12 Cubing Geography
   - 9c12 Cubing History
   - 10c12 Cubing Biography
   - 11c12 Cubing an Action
   - 12c12 Cubing a Technical Report

Step Two: Fill out the six squares by writing about the topic in each square.

7. Six of the squares will have a question or topic listed inside the square. Six of the squares are information squares and the others are flaps that will help the cube hold together when you assemble the cube. Fill out only the information squares: the ones that have something already printed in them.
8. In regard to your overall subject, answer the question in each box or write about the topic in each square. For example, if you are writing about an event, like a news story, you would use the 4c12 Cubing Who, What, When, Where, Why form. In the Who square write about who the story is about; in the What square write about what happened; in the When box write about when it happened; in the Where box, write about where it happened; in the Why box, write about why you think it happened.

9. In each square write the basic, important information you know about this question or topic. Depending on the size of the box, this might be anywhere from 1 to 5 sentences.

Step Three: Cut out the cube and assemble it following the directions on 2c12.

1. Cut out the cube along all dotted lines on the form; this will sometimes mean cutting between squares. One of these might be an information square and one might be a flap.
2. Fold the cube form on all lines to make it easier to assemble. Fold the form back – all the folds should be behind, instead of above, the printed side.
3. Use a glue stick or paste to apply the adhesive to every shaded square. In you can’t make out the shading, use the glue stick on every flap. None of the information squares should have glue or paste on them.
4. Fold the cube carefully following the directions on 2c12.

Variations for Cubing

1. If all the extra flaps are confusing, use the Basic Cube forms instead, and fill in the appropriate questions or topics. After you cut the cube out, use tape to hold together each side. This will work, but it will not be as durable as the cubes with flaps. This means it cannot be handled as much.
2. You can put together many cubes you have done over a period of time, or combine yours with cubes that other people have done. You could create a wall of cubes, connect the cubes together in a mobile, or make an archway above a door.
3. You could put something in the middle of the cube to give it more weight and stability. You could stuff it with tissue paper or construction paper, for example.
Variations for Writing

1. In order to create a research or term paper, the cube can be used as an outline. Each side of the cube can be turned into one or more paragraphs by expanding and further explaining what is written on the cube, gathering more information and finding quotes and primary sources to back up your information.

2. Any side of the cube can be used to write a paragraph.

Using a K-W-L chart have students start with what they know about the depression and what kind of president Hoover was through this time. Then have them list the questions they have about this period. After reading the chapter and doing the activities have them fill in the last column of what they learned.
Directions:

Materials:
- KWL Chart

Step One: Read the chapter or segment you wish to analyze

Step Two: Fill out the K [know] column: what do you know?

3. What key things do you know from the story or explanation you have read so far? This might be who, what, where, when, why, or how information.
4. Write this information concisely in the K [What do you know?] column.

Step Three: Fill out the W [want] column: what do you want to know?

3. Given what you know, what would you like to know about this story or topic, about what has happened or will happen in the future?
4. Write this information concisely in the W [What do you want to know?] column.

Step Four: Fill out the L [learned] column: what have you learned?

3. As you read more of the story, or learn more about the topic, ask yourself what you have learned. Do you have answers to any of the questions in your W column: what you wanted to know?
4. Write this information concisely in the L [What have you learned?] column. You may want to do this at various times as you learn. You may want to check off the questions in the W column when you answer them in the L column.

Step Five: Review the chart when it is complete

Variations of the KWL Chart

5. You can do this chart for any topic you are trying to learn about.
6. This can be done on worksheets, or written on a big piece of paper, like chart paper or butcher paper. This can also be written on a white board or black board; the shape of the chart is easy to copy.
7. When you are analyzing a story, you can copy a KWL chart on a piece of paper and quickly take the story apart. This can be a helpful strategy on a test. This can use the same strategy for a nonfiction topic, a problem or a case study.
8. You can do this individually, in pairs, in a small group, or as part of a large group.

Variations for Writing

1. Write a paragraph from any of the 3 columns, K, W or L, of the chart.

While Hoover was in denial of the depression and people starving, what was going on in Europe?
Why was Hoover scared?
How does music and art depict what is going on during a certain time in our history?
Why were soldiers protesting at the White house?
Was Hoover correct in saying the depression was over?
What kind of president was Hoover?
Why were homeless areas called Hoovervilles?

Key Paragraph

“What Hoover meant was that no government money should be spent on relief programs. He thought people could help themselves. If government money was spent it should go to business. That would strengthen the economy, he said and business money would “trickle down” to the people. Many economists believed as he did.”
